DETAILED ACTION

Claims 1-36 are pending in the instant application.

The claims recite a number of polypeptide species. This application contains claims directed to the following patentably distinct species of the claimed invention:

Methods that include delivery of a vector encoding one of the following polypeptide hormones:

- A. cytokine
- B. colony stimulating factor
- C. nerve growth factor
- D. insulin
- E. glucagon
- F. rennin
- G. parathyroid hormone
- H. growth hormone
- I. growth factor
- J. erythropoietin

The species are independent or distinct because they are not obvious over each other and because each polypeptide hormone is structurally and functionally distinct. Furthermore, the polypeptide hormones are not obvious variants. Thus, delivery of one polypeptide would not be considered obvious over any of the others. Because each polypeptide hormone is functionally distinct, delivery to an animal will produce different effects for different polypeptides. Thus, each species is patentably distinct.

Applicant is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 to elect a single disclosed species for prosecution on the merits to which the claims shall be restricted if no generic claim is finally held to be allowable. Currently, Claims 1, 12, and 24 are generic with respect to the polypeptide hormone being delivered. Applicant is advised that a reply to this requirement must include an identification of the species that is elected consonant with this requirement, and a listing of all claims readable thereon, including any claims subsequently added. An argument that a claim is allowable or that all claims are generic is considered nonresponsive unless accompanied by an election. Upon the allowance of a generic claim, applicant will be entitled to consideration of claims to additional species which are written in dependent form or otherwise include all the limitations of an allowed generic claim as provided by 37 CFR 1.141. If claims are added after the election, applicant must indicate which are readable upon the elected species. MPEP § 809.02(a). Should applicant traverse on the ground that the species are not patentably distinct, applicant should submit evidence or identify such evidence now of record showing the species to be obvious variants or clearly admit on the record that this is the case. In either instance, if the examiner finds one of the inventions unpatentable over the prior art, the evidence or admission may be used in a rejection under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) of the other invention.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their recognized divergent subject matter and because the searches required for the separate inventions are not coextensive, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).
